

Joel Scott, PGY4, Diagnostic & Clinical Pathology

I am a PGY-4 in Diagnostic and Clinical Pathology, with particular interest in hematopathology and anatomical pathology. I feel very fortunate to be able to complete my residency training in my hometown alongside exceptional staff, coresidents and colleagues. When I am not at work, you can find me climbing at Grip It or planning my next trip to the mountains

Here are some of the reasons Joel was chosen as Resident of the Month (As quoted from the nomination letter):

"Joel Scott consistently demonstrates the qualities of an outstanding physician and colleague. He is knowledgeable, dependable, and deeply committed to providing high-quality patient care while supporting those around him. Joel combines strong clinical and academic expertise with a calm, thoughtful approach that makes him a trusted resource for both residents and faculty."

"Joel is an excellent communicator and educator who takes the time to explain concepts clearly and patiently, creating a supportive learning environment. He is always approachable and willing to help, whether it is reviewing cases, answering questions, or offering guidance to junior residents. His professionalism, kindness, and steady leadership help foster confidence and teamwork on service."

"Joel is also a dedicated and enthusiastic teacher who actively contributes to academic teaching sessions and exam preparation. His commitment to education, mentorship, and continuous improvement has had a meaningful impact on our training program. With his strong clinical skills, generosity as a teacher, and positive presence, Joel is a truly deserving Resident of the Month and a valued member of our team."
